Big Burning Bee

The Jubilee Supper at the Congregational church Friday evening was a delightful affair. Every one was in the best of spirits over the fact that again no debt rested upon the church organization. The supper, at which over 140 were seated, was followed by a short program, as the committee, Messrs. W. I. Merrill, E. Barron and H. C. Smith had been instructed to leave time for social intercourse.

"Kentucky Babe", and "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes" were sung by Messrs. Smith, Lanphear, Merrill and Barron, and Miss Bozena Kalas, assisted by Messrs. Halamicek and Kalas rendered the following beautiful trios, "Ordante" by Reisigger; "Slavonic Dances" by Vorak, and "Hiejre Katie" by Jeno Hubay.

Rev. G. E. Atkinson spoke briefly of the success which was experienced last year in securing the final pledges, which now that they have been paid, made possible the occasion that all were enjoying so much.

Rev. W. E. Eckles spoke a few words of appreciation for the Manse which they now occupy, and their pleasure to feel that it is clear of debt.

Mr. Geo. Stray preceded the burning of the notes with a few appropriate remarks, and then the assembly sang a Jubilee Song written by the Rev. Atkinson, while the flames consumed the last evidences of the past indebted

Old Settler's Day Plans Under Way

The speaker for the Old Settler's Day celebration has been secured, and the committee, the Rev. W. H. Lloyd, the Rev. W. E. Eckles and Geo. E. Hyde, are to be highly complimented on their work. Dr. Van Horn, who was formerly at Seattle, is popularly known as the, "little giant of the Northwest," and is one of the best orators on the coast.

The committees are busy formulating the program to be held at 10 o'clock in the forenoon at the new school auditorium. Following this a picnic dinner and reunion will be had at the banquet room of I. O. O. F. hall. During the afternoon a basket-ball game will be played between the fast Campbell team and an outside aggregation and the Campbell Athletics will cross bats with the speedy Ark Stars of San Jose. For those not interested in the sports a program will be given. In the evening, Miss Bozena Kalas, assisted by Jan Kalas, cellist, and Josef Halamicek, violinist, and a local male double quartet, will give a musical program at the new Grammar school for the piano benefit fund.

Newspaper Robbed

The Los Gatos Mail-News has been enjoying too much prosperity and such good news "leaked." The book-keeper discovered the burglary and phoned the bank "stop payment on checks, our safe has been swiped." And sure enough it had. Some husky burglars had carried the safe out the back door and to the creek bed where it was opened. About $6 in cash, think of it, enough to break most newspapermen was taken and the several checks were torn to bits. The books were not destroyed. Editor Falck is now looking about for a hole in the ground where thieves will not break in nor rust corrupt. It is now thoroughly demonstrated that a newspaperman has no business with a safe When is a safe not safe? But say, Bre'rFalck will get a lot of notoriety and free publicity out of this little dido. Owing to the high cost-a-paper we would be inclined to think that the cash belonged to a friend, and just after Christmas, too. But of course one can never tell to what straits even a burglar will be put in these Democratic times.

RICH IN ITS HISTORY

ISTRIAN TERRITORY HAS HAD AN IMPORTANT PAST.

Battlefield of Europe Throughout the Centuries, It is Again the Center of Discord—Strict Old Communal Regulations.

"Many long-slumbering memories have been quickened by the present resistless flood of war that has engulfed in its course nearly all of the historic spots in Europe, recalling to the breathless onlookers in neutral lands, in the light of the tragic significance of these places today, their romantic stories of the centuries past," begins a bulletin issued by the National Geographic society, treating of what life has been in Austria's Istrian territory, which the Italians are now attempting to invade. The statement continues:

"Istria, the wedge-shaped peninsula at the head of the Adriatic and the surrounding territory back of Trieste, not of great importance commercially or industrially and with few connections with the world in the West, thus little known and spoken of, unrolls a stream of highly interesting reminiscences of past civilizations when brought to attention as one of today's great battlefields. The civilization of the peninsula is ancient. Ionians from rich and cultured Miletus settled colonies there in the ninth century B. C., and in 735 B. C. the Corinthians followed them. The sunny culture of the Greeks once blossomed all along these shores, formed its artists here, builded its temples, and at last gave way before the Celts, who arrived about the fourth century B. C. When the Romans were forced to crush the pirates of the North Adriatic, Istria fell under their domination, about 177 B. C. Following an uprising the Romans thoroughly subdued the land in 128 B. C., and in 127 B. C. 14,000 Roman colonists were settled there.

"Through the Dark Ages and well into the Middle Ages Istrian land was in the vortex of the struggle between the empires of the east and west, and then between Byzantium, the German powers of the north and the rising commercial cities of Italy. By 1145 Venice had established privileged connections with most of the Istrian towns. From this time date some very interesting records of social organizations on the peninsula. The land was organized into communes, with their chief magistrate, a small council or council of assessors, and a council of the people. The commune governments extended their work to an even greater degree than the most governed communities would think of doing today. Their regulations provided for all manner of domestic supervision. They fixed the time of new vintage, the time for selling new wine, the amount of bread that could be baked in one town, and administered 'pure food' regulations with greatest strictness.

"As today, judges went through the markets trying the food. These judges went through the taverns and tasted the wine before the innkeepers might put it on sale. The prices of foreign goods were fixed by the authorities and the quality of these goods carefully determined before they could be put on sale. Stone measurements were cut on fountains, on the foundation stones of public buildings and on other conspicuous places. Armed men were not allowed to enter the cities, the regulation against carrying weapons being deemed just as important then as now. However, a citizen-soldier who happened to kill an onlooker during military practice was able to get immunity from punishment. Militarism had its privileges in Istria.

"In some of the cities the making of false money was punishable with death; the bearing of false witness, where no fine was collected, was punished by the loss of the right nostril and publication on the stair of the town hall of the delinquent as a perjurer. The destruction of property was punished by the loss of the right hand, and a long list of illegal words, oaths and objectionable phrases was attached to the section of the code that provided the punishment of the pillory for the blasphemer. Tips were strictly forbidden; the workman was forced to accept no more than the wage prescribed. The activity of those intrusted with looking out for the people's welfare stretched to every little detail of domestic life."

Hardships of Travel.

"Boss, could yer give a dime to a flood sufferer?" asked the tramp.

"How could the floods have injured you?" said the cautious philanthropist. "I dare say you had no property to be destroyed."

"No, sir. But I wuz on a nort' an' freight trains h delayed by de high water no tellin' when I'll reac tion."

Society In Honolulu

ANNUAL FLORAL PARADE

WHEN the picturesque opera bouffe kingdom of Hawaii succumbed to the law of destiny in 1893, when the reigning queen was deposed and a republic set up, and five years later when the republic became a territory of the United States of America, the romance of the old-time government disappeared with the furling of the beautiful Hawaiian flag. But the old, moonlit nights still remain; the same incomparable climate still enthralls, and the tinkle and the strum of the ukulele and guitar are heard beneath the coconut palms as the native Hawaiians sob their ear-haunting melodies, writes a special correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor from Honolulu.

No longer is the old palace filled with diplomatists of foreign stations; distinguished generals, admirals, writers and playfolk are no longer received in the old throne room by a Hawaiian king and queen. Of all the old regime, there still remains only the deposed queen, Liliuokalani, living a still eventful life in Washington place, the home of her husband, the prince consort; a home filled with relics of the days of royalty; reminders of the days when King Kalakaua was the monarch, and she a queen herself, during a brief reign of two years.

Today, however, the queen is honored in Washington place and elsewhere as if she sat upon the throne of old Hawaii. On Hawaiian holidays, on her birthday and many other occasions, she receives in semiroyal state; the guests are ushered into her drawing room by the same officers who officiated when she was in the palace; the introductions are made by the same courteous gentleman who officiated as chamberlain during her reign; such toilets as are seen in London, Paris and Berlin.

The army now forms a large part of the population of Honolulu. Its uniforms are seen at all formal affairs; in fact, the companies that assemble in Honolulu are often far more brilliant than are to be met in mainland cities. The social code of Honolulu is strict, and formality demands a regard for the rules that have been found necessary for the common good of society everywhere. The city of Honolulu is divided into social districts, all of the women of the same neighborhood receiving on the same day.

Stranger Not Held Aloof.

The stranger must needs yield reference to entitle him to entry into the conservative circle of social Honolulu. The stranger, however, is not held aloof. Every opportunity is afforded, whenever possible, for the stranger to mingle on equal terms with the residents. The outdoor life favors such mingling—the life around the hotels, the sea beaches, the homes with their wide-open porches or "lanais," as the inslanders term them; the town clubs and country clubs, the army posts, the varied forms of public amusement. All these tend to bring the stranger into the midst of the social life of the capital.

There is the "smart set;" there is the conservative set; there is the royalty set; there are many social circles in Honolulu. Among the most active entertainers are the Princess Kawananakoa, a beautiful part-Hawaiian woman of culture and brilliant accomplishments, and Prince and Princess Kalanianaole (Prince Cupid, for short, they say), whose delightful old villa at Waikiki is the scene of many and wonderful parties. Prince her attendants are the same women who attended her in the brilliant days of the monarchy. In the drawing-room are seen the old, silken royal standards of Hawaii. In the trains of guests are the highest federal, territorial and city officials; there are jurists, generals and admirals, statesmen and writers. Social life in old Hawaii still centers in Washington place and all delight in honoring the beloved queen. The people of Hawaii who overturned the monarchy still give sincere homage to this woman.

Impress of the Monarchy.

That is one side of the social activities in Hawaii. The monarchy made its impress upon the people and their customs in the past, and many of these customs of habit and precedence have not yet been overcome, for the etiquette of the court of St. James prevailed at the palace during the reign of King Kalakaua and Queen Liliuokalani. The levees, at which presentations were made, were based in form and style upon those given in Buckingham palace.

With the change in the government and the setting up of a republic, the president of the republic, Sanford Ballard Dole, former United States judge, and Mrs. Dole became the arbiters of official social life in Hawaii. Mrs. Dole was the social hostess of Hawaii; around them were the descendants of the early missionaries, New Englanders mainly, whose culture, educational and religious training have brought Hawaii to its high state of civilization the last 100 years.

Kalanianaole is Hawaii's delegate to congress.

Golf and polo are played throughout the islands. Tennis courts abound everywhere, even at the remote villas of the sugar planters far away from town. The motor car is everywhere, even going now to the very edge of the crater of Kilauea, on the island of Hawaii. Baseball is played the year round. At the famous Honolulu Country club in Nuuanu valley, just outside of Honolulu, is a splendid 18-hole golf course.

Isolated as Honolulu may be geographically, its society otherwise is in close touch with the outside world, and is in no sense insular. It is ready to do its part, with credit to the distinguished strangers whom it may receive, and its representatives are at home in any land wheresoever business or pleasure may take them.

Meerschaum as Building Material.

Even the most esthetically inclined of our American millionaires would hardly consider the luxury of living in a residence built of meerschaum as within the range of their fortunes, yet there are many unpretentious houses of this material in the Spanish town of Vallecas, near Madrid, where a coarse variety of this substance may be found. Oddly enough, just across the straits are the Moroccans, who have discovered that still another variety of meerschaum lathers freely and makes a good substitute for the ordinary toilet soap.—Popular Science Monthly.

GOLDEN ROD PARTY.

"'Let's give a Party,' shouted the Elves.

"'All right,' said the Fairies. 'But what sort of a Party shall it be?'

"'A Golden Rod Party,' said little Effie Elf.

"'What kind of a Party is that?' asked Fairy Ybab, who was hoping it would be some sort of a Party where they wanted Music—for the Fairy Ybab loves to lead her little Orchestra of Fairies.

"'It's a Party,' continued Effie Elf, 'where we all Dance with the Golden Rods—and we dress up just like Golden Rods too—so that the Fairy Queen doesn't know us from the Flowers. Or, at least she pretends she can't tell us apart and that makes such fun!'

"'All right, let's get started. Who is going to tell the Golden Rod Family about it?'

"'I will,' said Fairy Silver Bell.

"She went with her Silver Wand over to the big Field which was full of beautiful Golden Rods all Dancing about in the Breeze, and she whispered to them:

"'Come, we're going to have a Party.'

"'Have you asked Mr. Sun?' said the Golden Rods.

"'No,' said Fairy Silver Bell, 'but I will right away.' And she whispered in the soft Breeze once more:

"'Mr. Sun, come join the Fun,
And Dance with us today.
For we have the Golden Rods,
Who are so bright and gay.'

"And Mr. Sun whispered back in the Breeze:

"'You know that Mr. Sun,
Is always out for Fun,
It's only on a Rainy day,
That I haven't heart to play.'

"Fairy Silver Bell laughed in her lovely silvery voiced way, and the Party began.

"The Golden Rods all stood up very fine and straight and looked brighter and more golden than ever, and the Elves and Fairies quickly changed into costumes that looked very much like Golden Rods too.

"They Danced in and out of the Golden Rods in the field, and of course, soon came along the Fairy Queen.

"'Dear me,' she said, 'I wonder where all the Elves and Fairies are today. Here's the most gorgeous Field of Golden Rods. I wouldn't be surprised to find them here.'

She flew over the Field several times, and then she alighted very gently on top of one of the Golden Rods.

"'Well, you're not a Fairy,' she said.

"And the Golden Rod looked up at Mr. Sun and Smiled. Maybe you can't imagine how a Golden Rod would Smile—but if you look hard at one some day—and see how very brightly it is looking up at Mr. Sun, you will know that that is the Golden Rod's Smile. It is one of the brightest Smiles in the world.

"Then the Fairy Queen caught hold of Fairy Silver Bell's hair which had blown outside of her hat made in the shape of the top of the Golden Rod's head.

"'Ah, I've caught Fairy Silver Bell,' laughed the Fairy Queen. 'I saw you scampering about when you thought I wasn't looking. Yes, then I knew that you weren't growing out of the Earth.'

"Of course, that was just the way the Elves and Fairies had wanted the Party to turn out, and then the Fairy Queen Danced. She waved her Wand and over her dropped a costume just like a Golden Rod Flower too, and then she called out:

"'Now for some Music, Fairy Ybab, some nice soft Music. We won't have the Drums today? For, you know the Drums are played by the Raindrops that patter down to the Earth, and the Sun would have had to leave the Party if they came. So Fairy Ybab's Orchestra played some soft and lovely Music and all the little Fairies Sang.

"I believe the Grown-Ups were heard to say:

"'Sometimes the Wind sounds just like Music.'

"But we know the Secret—it was the Music of the Fairies and the South Breeze was just humming to keep time, for it had promised Mr. Sun to take the place of the Raindrops.

"And the Golden Rods whispered in the Breeze too: 'Thank you Fairies for our Party!'"

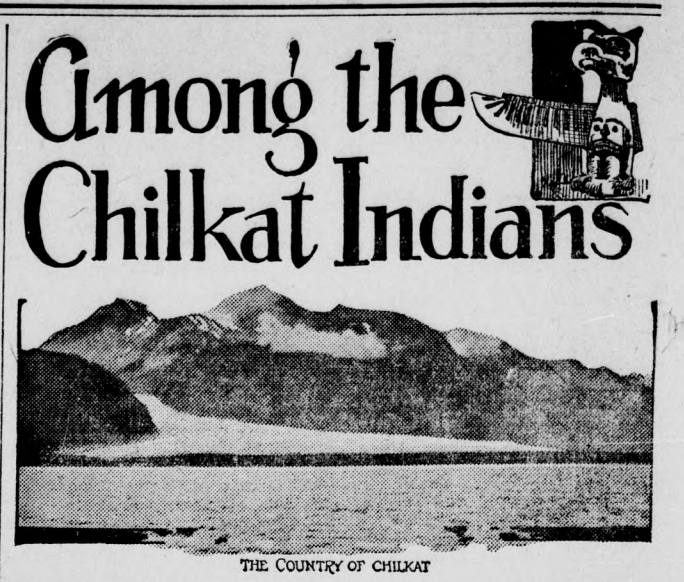
Among the Chilkat Indians



THE COUNTRY OF CHILKAT

UPON the discovery of the northwest coast of America, the Tlingit were found in possession of southeastern Alaska, with the exception possibly of the southernmost portion of Prince of Wales island, which had been wrested from them by invading Haida from Masset on the Queen Charlotte islands during the latter half of the eighteenth century. From the testimony of the early explorers, this occupation seems to have been of sufficient age to have developed a racial type, speaking the same tongue, acknowledging established laws, and bound by like conventions, says an article by George T. Emmons in the American Museum Journal.

What knowledge we can gather of their origin and early life from their family traditions, songs and geographical names, although fragmentary and vague, tells consistently of a uniform northward migration by water, along the coast and through the inland channels from the Tsimshian peninsula and Prince of Wales island, which was constantly augmented by parties of interior people descending the greater rivers to the sea.

The social organization of the Tlingit is founded on matriarchy, or descent through the mother, and is dependent upon two parties, the members of each of which may not marry among themselves, but the two parties intermarry and supplement each other upon the many ceremonial occasions that mark their intercourse.

The two parties are subdivided into fifty-six existing families or clans, founded on blood relationship and absolutely independent in government, succession, inheritance and territory. Within the family there is a well-defined aristocracy, wholly dependent upon birth, from which the chiefs are chosen; an intermediate class consisting of those who have forced themselves to the front, through wealth, character or artistic ability; and the poorer people. In earlier days there were many slaves who had no recognized rights.

Chilkat the Leading Tribe.

Geographically considered, there are 16 tribal divisions known as "kwans," a contraction of "ka" (man) and "an" (land lived on or claimed). Of these several tribes the Chilkat-kwan has been the most prominent since our acquaintance with Alaska. The relative importance of a primitive people is measured by conditions of food supply and other natural resources. The commanding position of the Chilkat, at the head of the inland channels controlling the mountain passes to the interior, gave them the monopoly of the fur trade of the upper Yukon valley, and the placer copper fields of the White river region. These products, unknown to the coastal area, were economically important in primitive days, and after the advent of Europeans the increased demand for furs, and their greater value, made this trade even more lucrative. The Tlingit were a canoe people and might be termed semi-nomadic, as they were on their hunting grounds in the early spring and late fall, while the summer season was spent in the fishing camps by the salmon streams; but notwithstanding these long absences, they built substantial villages, where, except for social activities, they spent the winter in comparative idleness.

As they looked to the sea for their principal food supply, their villages were directly on the shore just above the high water-mark, in sheltered coves, where they could launch their canoes and land in any weather and at any stage of the tide. But the Chilkat, differing from all the other Tlingit, lived just beyond the open water in a rather restricted territory on rivers that were veritable storehouses of food, bringing an abundance of fish life to their very doors and so permitting them to remain at home throughout the year, except when on their trading trips to the interior, which gave their habitations a more permanent character, and contributed to the unity of communal life.

At the Mother Town.

Of the four principal old villages, all of which have survived the ravages of constant strife and the still more deadly by-products of civilization—liquor and disease—Klukwan (mother town) has always held the first place in size, wealth and the character of its people. It retained its supremacy long after the more southern coast villages had gone to decay, as its more interior and isolated position and the independent and aggressive reputation of its population kept white traders at a distance. Klukwan lies at the edge of a gradual slope on the north bank of the Chilkat, 20 miles from its mouth, where the swift current concentrated in a single channel forms a strong eddy that permits the landing of canoes at any stage of the river.

Of the five totemic families that form the Chilkat-kwan, four are resident here. Of these the Kon-nuh-ta-di, the sole representative of the Raven party, is the one with which this paper deals. Their legendary history, so imaginary and interesting, is closely associated with the wanderings and antics of "Yehlh," the Raven creator, while the earliest family traditions are centered about the south and west coasts of the Prince of Wales and contiguous islands, where at an early period they must have lived.

The Whale House.

When I first visited Klukwan in 1885, the large old communal houses of the Kon-nuh-ta-di were still standing, the principal one of which, that of the hereditary chief, "Yough-hit" (Whale house), was in the last stages of decay and uninhabitable, although the interior fittings were intact and it was still used upon festival occasions. It was unquestionably the most widely known and elaborately ornamented house, not only at Chilkat, but in Alaska. It occupied the site of much older houses, and, it is claimed, much larger ones. It is said to have been built by Kate-tsu about, or prior to, 1835, and stood in the middle of the village. It represented the best type of Tlingit architecture, a broad low type of Tlingit architecture, a broad low structure of heavy hewn spruce timbers, with noticeably high corner posts, that gave it a degree of character wholly wanting in the larger houses of the Vancouver island people. It faced the river, with a frontage of 49 feet 10 inches and a depth of 53 feet—approximately the proportions of Tlingit houses, large and small. Each of these old houses formed a solid structure, the frame and planking supporting each other without the use of spikes. The doorway, which was the only opening in the walls, was approached by two steps, more than three feet above the ground.

The interior formed an excavation four feet nine inches below the ground level, with two receding steplike platforms. The lower square floor space, 26 feet by 26 feet 9 inches, constituted the general living and working room common to all, except that portion in the rear and opposite the entrance, which was reserved for the use of the house chief, his immediate family, and most distinguished guests. This was the place of honor in all Tlingit houses upon all occasions, ceremonial or otherwise. The flooring, of heavy, split, smoothed planks of varying widths, extended around a central graveled fireplace six feet by six feet and a half, where all of the cooking was done over a wood fire that also heated the house in winter. In front of and a little to the right of the fire space was a small cellarlike apartment entered by a small trapdoor in the floor barely large enough to admit a person. This was used as a steam bath, by heating bowlders in the fire, dropping them on the floor below with split wood tongs, and pouring water upon them to generate vapor, whereupon the bather entered and the opening was covered over.

The first platform, extending around the main floor at an elevation of two and three-fourths feet, served both as a step, and as a lounging place in the daytime. The upper and broader platform, rising two feet above that below, was at the ground level, and was floored with heavy planks. This platform constituted the sleeping place of the inmates.

New House Never Completed.

In 1899, this house and "Yehlh-hit," or Raven house, adjoining were torn down and preparations for the erection of new buildings were got under way, and in the winter of 1901, after the walls were up and the roof on, a great potlatch was given by the Konnuh-ta-di, to the three Wolf families of the opposite phratry in the tribe, and the Ka-gwan-tan of Sitka, in which over $10,000 in property, food and money were distributed. The head chief of the family, master of the Whale house, "Yehlh-gu ou," or Raven's slave, welcomed his guests upon landing, wearing the Raven hat.

The new house, although modern in form and of two stories, took the old name, and it stands today windowless and doorless, the interior grown up in weeds, a monument of the last great potlatch of the Chilkat, as the chief died soon afterward and his successor has neither the means to finish it nor the desire to live in it, and the elaborate carvings have never been placed.

A Voice from the Dead.

"For those who despair," is the touching heading appearing in Le Figaro of Paris, over a short item of news to the following effect: A French soldier from whom not a word had been heard by his relatives from September 3, 1914, has written at last from a German prison camp near Paderborn, Germany, announcing that he is well. Until now, he states, it had been impossible for him to communicate with home, but "the situation has changed." "I am enduring my captivity under good conditions," he adds.

WHY AVIATORS FALL

NOT ALWAYS BECAUSE THEIR MACHINE IS BROKEN.

Scientist Expresses Belief That The High Altitude Frequently Affects "Airmen"—Has Made Many Tests Apparently Proving It.

We often hear it said that the aviator who falls to the earth is the victim of a broken machine. When an aviator falls to his death his machine is usually so badly damaged that it is impossible to say which part was not in good working condition.

Doctor Placzek, a well-known German scientist, has long suspected that the fault was not with the machine at all in nine cases out of ten, but that some profound change, either physiological or psychic, causes the aviator to lose control of the motor. Such a change, he thinks, may be due to the extremely high altitude.

He tested his theory with a pneumatic cabinet, so constructed that the atmospheric pressure could be quickly diminished. In this he placed a normal, healthy man. He then reduced the pressure of air to correspond to an altitude of 12,000 feet.

Doctor Placzek found by various tests to which he subjected the man in the cabinet that the power of concentration was materially impaired. In some way also muscular activity was hampered, that is to say the muscles did not respond either with alacrity or precision to the impulses of the will. The entire mechanism of the human machine, through lack of centralized action, was thrown out of gear.

In addition to the diminished atmospheric pressure from which the aviator and the subject in the cabinet alike suffered, the aviator labors under an appreciable excitement. He is subjected, furthermore, to a continual change of atmospheric pressure, the same being now greater, now less, as the airplane is swept up or downward by currents of air, which, at a great altitude, are swift and strong, so that the task, both difficult and delicate, of instantaneously adjusting itself to continuous changes, is laid upon his organism.

The aviator also has other difficulties to contend with. The difference in temperature from the earth he has left and the altitude in which he operates is intense, and he cannot escape from the wind, which accentuates the cold, and, at first contracting the blood vessels, later expands them as they become paralyzed by the cold. Then, when they are enlarged, more blood rushes to the skin to fill the enlarged vessels, and the internal organs suddenly find themselves with a diminished and insufficient supply of blood.

This is not a wholesome condition for any of the organs, but for the brain and heart it is particularly serious.

Good Work of Ozone.

The effect of ozone upon slow-healing wounds seems to commend it to extensive use. In 21 cases reported by Dr. George Stoker of the Oxygen hospital in London, the injuries, chiefly in cavities of the long bones, had persisted from three weeks to fourteen months, but after the direct application of ozone cure was complete within five days to seven weeks. Besides its direct cleansing action, the ozone greatly aids in eliminating dead bone, foreign bodies and harmful deposits. It was concluded that this substance acts as a very efficacious germicide, serves through the wounded tissue as a powerful stimulant of the circulation, and promotes the combination of oxygen with hemoglobin in the blood. The first application of ozone brings about an increase of pus, which is followed by clear serum, then by reddish serum, when the healing process becomes much accelerated.

Planting Trees by Machinery.

The United States forestry service has adopted a new invention which plants from 10,000 to 15,000 forest tree seedlings a day. Previously the planting had been done by hand at the rate of 1,200 to 1,500 trees each day per man.

The machine is about the size of an ordinary mowing machine, and is operated by three men and two horses. One man drives the team while the other two handle the seedlings. The machine makes a furrow, in which the trees are set at any desired distance, and an automatic device indicates where they should be dropped. Two metal-tired wheels push and roll the dirt firmly down around the roots.

CALOMEL SELDOM SOLD HERE NOW

Nasty drug salivates, makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs 50 cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.—Adv.

Improved Portable Lamp.

A new form of portable lamp, the light from which is adjustable, is being brought out in Germany, according to the London Electrician. A small spiral resistance in series with the lamp and switch is mounted above the battery. The resistance can be readily varied by the motion of a small knob at the side of the case, the brightness of the lamp being thus altered within the limits of maximum intensity and a dull, red glow. This enables current to be economized when only a small amount of light is needed, prolonging the life of the lamp and battery. The resistance is also useful in preventing the tendency to overrun the lamp unduly when a new battery is substituted for the old one.

World's Tallest Women.

After taking measurement of the height of women in France, England and America, a doctor announces that the English woman is the tallest and the American comes next. The average height of the Frenchwoman is five feet one inch. The American woman is nearly two inches taller, and the women of Great Britain one-half inch taller than the latter. American women are heavier, their average weight being about 117 pounds.

TO WASH BLANKETS

OPERATION TAKES TIME IF GOOD WORK IS WANTED.

Warm Water, Ammonia, and White Soap Is Recommended—Articles Must on No Account Be Subjected to Rubbing.

Housecleaning means many wearying tasks, but the worst of them all is washing blankets. It takes a goodly amount of money from the housekeeper's allowance to send these to the cleaner's, especially where there is a large family. So the woman who decides to "do" her own blankets should learn the very easiest way to manage them.

Here is one system guaranteed by an experienced housekeeper: Put a half pint of ammonia into a tub and stretch the blankets over it, not allowing them to slip down into the fluid. This should then be covered with lukewarm water. This process allows the fumes of the ammonia to rise through the blanket and loosens the dirt. Good, vigorous squeezing will do the rest. Rinse in a tub of clear warm water and run lightly through the wringer.

Here is another and more complicated method, designed for use on very soiled blankets: Air, beat and brush the blankets out on the line before washing, so that every possible piece of fluff and down is removed. Then shave a couple of bars of good wool soap into a basin, add it to a pan of boiling water and allow it to "jell" for a few minutes. Now have a tub or stationary washtub half full of warm water with a half cupful of ammonia in it. Mix the soap in with this, then put in your blankets. Stir them around with a stick, but do not rub them—squeeze and souse them up and down. When the top of the water begins to become scummed with dirt the water should be changed. The second water should be like the first. The sousing process must be repeated until all the dirt is removed. Rinse in clear water. Then put them through the wringer—the jaws of which should be very wide apart or they will make your blankets look stringy—and hang out on the line.

Blankets should be hung lengthwise on the line, using plenty of pins, so that they have no chance to sag. Shade is better than sun for drying them. When they are quite dry go over them well with a clean whisk broom, brushing with the nap. This makes them delightfully fluffy. Fold away with camphor balls or in moth-proof bags.

English Chicken Pie.

Pare six medium-sized potatoes, cut in small pieces; cook until tender, but not broken, and then add two cupfuls chicken meat and half a cupful fresh pork cooked and cut in small pieces; cover with a crust made as follows: Sift three teaspoonfuls baking powder with two cupfuls flour, add two tablespoonfuls shortening and half teaspoonful salt. Rub thoroughly together and mix with one small cupful milk. Put on floured board and press out with the hands to size required to cover chicken pie. Bake twenty minutes, and serve hot.

Economical Fruit Jelly.

Save all the rinds and pulp of lemons and oranges left from lemonade or fruit punch. Put them into a saucepan and cover with boiling water. Boil ten minutes, strain half the liquid and add sugar to taste—a small cupful of sugar to one dozen lemon skins gives a tart, refreshing jelly. Lastly stir in a half package of gelatin that has been dissolved in a little cold water. Pour into a mold and cool. One dozen lemon or orange rinds should make a quart of jelly, and it is better flavor and more fruity, than when made with the juice alone.

Bacon and Egg Hash.

Sometimes a few slices of bacon and a cold fried egg are left over from breakfast and it is a problem to make use of them. Try chopping them fine with an equal quantity of boiled or mashed potatoes, then fry like an ordinary hash in a little butter, letting it brown nicely before taking from the pan. Serve with a parsley garnish and chili sauce or catsup and you will think you have some brand-new epicurean dish. If you prefer, you may make the mixture into little cakes and fry them brown in butter or bacon fat.

Cream of Onion Puree.

Put two or three large onions through the food chopper and cook the juice and pulp in two tablespoonfuls of butter until a golden brown. Add a pinch of soda dissolved in a tablespoonful of water. Have ready a quart of milk scalded in a double boiler; add the onions and cook until creamy. Season with salt, pepper and paprika and thicken with cracker crumbs. Sprinkle grated cheese over the top when served. Send buttered toast bars to the table with this soup.

Bacon and Apples.

Cut the bacon thin and fry it a rich brown; place on a hot platter and keep warm while frying the apples. Cut these in rounds, core, but do not peel; cook in the bacon fat till tender and serve on the platter with the bacon.

Bacon and fried tomatoes are prepared in the same way.

Miner's Nystagmus.

Among the occupational diseases which have been the object of slight attention in this country may be included miner's nystagmus. No thorough investigation has been made to disclose it, so that, though it is known to exist, no definite information is available as to the extent to which the industry is affected by it.

A bulletin has been issued, however, by the United States bureau of mines concerning European experience with this disease, particularly that of Germany and Great Britain, where it is so common as to be recognized as among the occupational diseases for which compensation is paid.

Two views, it appears, are advanced as to the cause of miner's nystagmus. "One attributes it to eye strain due to working in a badly-lighted space with black light-absorbing surface; the other to strain of the extrinsic muscles of the eye, especially of the elevator muscles, due to the position of the miner when at work at the coal face or when examining the roof of the workings to detect gas or threatening falls."

Shaw Didn't Like Him.

"Many years ago in a house in Ashley Gardens," writes G. Bernard Shaw in the New Witness, "I was walking along a corridor with other guests at a musical evening when I saw coming toward me a man who produced an extraordinarily disagreeable impression on me, a tall young man in evening dress, with a blond beard and, as it seemed to me, a hateful expression.

"He was coming straight at me. I moved aside to avoid him, and he moved too, apparently to get into my way again. An impulse of rage at this insult was checked just in time by the discovery that instead of walking along a corridor I was crossing a square landing and that the detestable apparition who had chilled my very soul with his abominable aspect was a reflection of myself in the wall of mirror which the tenant of the Ashley Gardens flat had put up to give his cramped dwelling an appearance of spacious magnificence."

Constipation can be cured without drugs. Nature's own remedy—selected herbs—is Garfield Tea.—Adv.

Novels in Class.

The novel falls into one of four classes, as it deals with romance, with life, with ideals, or as, lastly, it takes the shape of a work of art pure and simple. Of the great novelists of the last century, Scott, Thackeray and George Eliot stand for the first three types. For the fourth we look in vain in that period. Mr. Hardy, who embodies it as to the manner born, is of our own generation; and here the name which at once occurs to us for romance is that of Robert Louis Stevenson, for life that of George Meredith, and for ideas that of Mrs. Humphrey Ward. The divisions, of course, overlap.

Of Some Importance

It may be of interest to you to know that the management of the Columbia Hospital of San Jose in their search for a source of milk supply chose our plant as the one whose sanitary conditions were unimpeachable.

We feel that this is no small compliment to us, when we consider the care that it is necessary for the management of this institution to exercise in choosing the food supply for all their patients.

That which is used to build up one's strength while in the Hospital will also do wonders toward keeping one from under the Doctor's care.

Here's Hoping

It is not at all improbable that our own "Athletics" will cross bats in March with the famous Chicago "Cubs" in an exhibition game at Luna Park, San Jose.

The "Cubs" make their first appearance in California at Pasadena March 2, Paso Robles, March 3, and then on North.

Mr. Dan Flannery, County Recorder, and Manager Bradford are negotiating with Route agent "Tip" O'Neill, now enroute to Oakland from Chicago, for the game and if scheduled Campbell will be flashed from Pacific to Atlantic and Canada to Mexico. Some advertising stunt, this. So, here's hoping.

Aid Appreciated

Judge A. J. Farley is in receipt of the following letter from the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief as an appreciative acknowledgement of his services.

Mr. A. J. Farley,
Campbell, Cal.
Dear Sir:—

I am in receipt of a letter from Mr. Roy G. Archibald, enclosing check from the Campbell, Cal. Committee for $100.00 to which you so kindly contributed your personal services and in behalf of our Committee wish to thank you for your generous co-operation.

Yours very truly,

Good Advertising

It was Horace Greeley who told the young men to "Go west and grow up with the country." He knew nothing of California—the Santa Clara valley or Campbell. It was the building of the Union Pacific Railroad and the publicity they gave out that developed this country, but Mr. Greeley was a man who had studied and could look into the future and like the men who built the Union Pacific and Mr. Herriman, had confidence in the West and Western people, and knew it was not the worthless country that many of the able statesmen of his day would have had the people believe.

Building the Union Pacific Railroad gave California the start that brought it from a population of five hundred thousand to over two million two hundred thousand people and it has yet hardly begun its actual development.—The Union Pacific has now started a publicity campaign that will be run in the most widely circulated magazines of the East, the first being the Saturday Evening Post of December 30 and when this campaign is through the attention of over ten million Eastern people will have been brought to this great country.

The tourist attention is being brought to the Pacific in a way that is bound to make it the coming pleasure resort of the world and California the objective point of all tourists.

A Letter of Appreciation

Post-master L. L. Miracle and Employees has received the following letter from the Office of the Post-master General, Washington, D. C.

With the beginning of the year 1917, I desire to express my thanks for and sincere appreciation of the untiring, faithful and efficient service you have rendered during the last year. It is especially a source of gratification and pride to me—as I am sure it should be to every one who has a part in this great public enterprise—that during the last holiday season the postal service again was able to handle promptly and satisfactorily by far the largest volume both of letter and parcel mail intrusted to it in the Nation's history. Only zealous effort and loyal co-operation of the officers and employees of the entire postal service brought this about.

I thank you again and wish you each a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Very Sincerely
A. S. BURLESON,
Post-master General.

WATCH THE LEGISLATURE

EVERY bill passed by a legislature increasing the number of public employees means increased taxes, for that is how the money to pay them is obtained.

Every bill passed by the legislature making the railroads employ more men than necessary, such as "stuffed" crew law, requiring extra brakemen on trains, a pilot on light engines, two men in the cab of gasoline motor cars, etc., etc., means higher freight and passenger rates, for that is how the money to pay them is obtained.

For this reason the public should keep an eye on state legislatures now in session and see to it that such legislation is not enacted. In other words keep tab on the legislator who makes a foot-ball out of the public welfare.

The people can not escape higher taxes or higher freight and passenger rates if the legislatures pass laws placing unnecessary men on the payroll of the public, the railroads or any other industry.

REDUCE the big mail route. Something is decidedly wrong with service, especially Route D, which carries mail in a part of the old Campbell territory. For example, a letter from Berkeley to one on that route will require three days for delivery, while it is a matter of only a few hours coming thru the Campbell office. Such mail should reach its destination not later than the next day. Numerous complaints have been made of the service on this route, the patrons asking to be placed on the Campbell route. If the postal department is anxious to give proper service to the people why isn't something done to correct such bungling in delivery. The present route out of Campbell handles such a quantity of mail as no other route in this territory. What is really needed for service is one more carrier out of Campbell with each route about 25 miles in length. Let's pull together and get it.

THE methods and sentences in vogue in the city police courts is nothing more nor less than a crime against humanity. For instance, Judge Dougherty of San Jose, when a pick-up is brought in as a vagrant almost invariably sentences him to 180 days with a 12 hour leave in which to take himself out of town. The next town does the same and so a man who happens to be out of work is sent on a hike which tends to make him a permanent vag. The best solution to this problem is a county or state farm where such unfortunates may be instilled with the work idea.

COMPLAINTS are being made to the Press office every now and again about magazine subscriptions that have not been turned in by the party taking the subscription. This is the result of giving subscriptions to irresponsible floating agents instead of the local responsible agents. It there was a way of knowing the honest deserving solicitor, the subscriber might act accordingly, but as this is not possible, there is but one safe way. Patronize your home agents.

SAY, what's the use of supporting a weather man when he can't hand us any better stuff for our money than what he has lately? Is it a paying propositlon with fuel so high? Let the coal man pay him.

TO-DAY is Ground Hog Day. Are we to have six weeks more of this delightful (?) winter weather.

Dr. White to Lecture

The second number in the Epworth League Entertainment Course will be given at the Methodist church on Friday evening, Feb. 9. For this number the League has secured Dr. Geo. W. White of San Francisco to present his famous lecture, "The Black Napoleon". This lecture holds the record of any lecture presented in the state as to the number of times it has been delivered.

It is a thrilling tale of a very heroic character, the negro Liberator of the island of Hayti. It is entirely historic and told in story form.

"It was a wonderfully vivid and eloquent portrayal of a magnificent character. In beauty of composition, and in force and eloquence of delivery, the lecturer proved himself a master."—Cal. Independent, Los Angeles.
